

Courage

I know a person with a lifelong disability
leaving him in crutches.

Yet,

He is still the strongest man anyone has ever met in every way possible.

He enjoyed his life,
and he loved baseball.

He had a family of his own,
coaching his children in his favorite sport.

At practice every week,
his players would stand in the outfield,
waiting for fly balls.

And he would find the courage to drop his crutches,
take a bat and bucket of balls,
and swing away.
